DR. PAPOLA

Gino G. Papola, associate editor of this issue of THE LINACRE QUARTERLY, is a clinical instructor in medicine at Hahnemann Medical College. He has served as president of the St. Francis of Assisi Guild in Philadelphia and as a regional director of region III of the National Federation. He now holds the office of secretary for the organization.

A native Philadelphian, he received his education at Temple University and Temple Medical School. His wife is Dr. Mary Longo, also of Temple. They have one queen — Anita Marie — and three sons.

Dr. Gino practices in Upper Darby. He is a member of the executive board of St. Agnes Hospital and medical director of St. Agnes School of Nursing.

The warmth of his personality is reflected in his dedicatory editorial. Add to this a quiet and comforting sense of humor and you may realize why LINACRE is proud and grateful to count Dr. Gino Papola on its editorial team.
