

May 1964

Contributors to this Issue

Catholic Physicians' Guilds

Follow this and additional works at: <http://epublications.marquette.edu/lmq>

Recommended Citation

Catholic Physicians' Guilds (1964) "Contributors to this Issue," The Linacre Quarterly: Vol. 31 : No. 2 , Article 21.
Available at: <http://epublications.marquette.edu/lmq/vol31/iss2/21>

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

As an active general practitioner in Foxboro, Mass., Francis C. Buckley, M.D., is acutely aware of the need for treating the whole patient. He is a member of the editorial board of Massachusetts Physician.

A graduate of St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa, and of Loyola University School of Medicine, Clement P. Cunningham, M.D., is the President of the National Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guild.

Joseph B. Doyle, M.D., is a practicing gynecologist with a major interest in problems of infertility. His well-known contributions in this field, all within the framework of Catholic medical ethics, include the cervical spoon and more accurate methods of determining ovulation time.

Brought up in a Protestant family in West Virginia, Dana L. Farnsworth, M.D., is no stranger to ecumenism, having worked with many church groups of various denominations. In the past several years he has participated in ten different seminars at St. John's Institute for Religion and Mental Health at Collegeville, Minnesota. He is much interested in the means by which psychiatry and other disciplines concerned with human welfare and development can be of the greatest mutual help. A diplomate of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, he is also a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. In 1957 he authored Mental Health in College and University (Harvard University Press) and is co-author of Living and of Textbook of Psychiatry.

Reverend J. Joseph Hofmann, S.J., is chaplain at Kings County Hospital Center, Brooklyn, N. Y. Ordained in 1954, he received his A.B. and S.T.B. degrees from Woodstock College, Maryland. He is an associate member of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists and has lectured on nursing ethics at Kings County Hospital Center, Hunter College School of Nursing, and State University of New York Teachers College (Plattsburg).

Chairman of the Department of Neurology at Boston University School of Medicine, Charles A. Kane, M.D., is a graduate of Boston Latin School, Harvard College, and Harvard Medical School. In addition to actively participating in the functions of the Guild of St. Luke of Boston he is a faculty advisor of the Thomas Linacre Club at Boston University School of Medicine.

Michael Kelly, M.D., is a rheumatologist in East Melbourne, Australia with a catholic outlook on medicine that runs from the literary to the philosophic. His scholarly book reviews frequently brighten the pages of Archives of Internal Medicine. He is Australian correspondent for the Catholic medical journals.

A thoracic and cardiovascular surgeon, Eugene G. Laforet, M.D., prepares the "Current Literature" section of THE LINACRE QUARTERLY.

The founder of Rescue, Inc., Reverend Kenneth B. Murphy, graduated from Boston College in 1942 and was ordained in 1946. He is a frequent contributor to Homiletic and Pastoral Review.

As a plastic surgeon Joseph E. Murray, M.D. has long been interested in the biological and clinical problems involved in transplantation. With

Drs. Harrison, Merrill, and others he participated in the epochal renal transplantations started ten years ago at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

After graduating from the University of Notre Dame and from the University of Buffalo School of Medicine, Arthur E. O'Dea, M.D. pursued postgraduate studies in pathology at Strong Memorial Hospital and the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, as well as at the Department of Legal Medicine, Harvard Medical School. He was formerly Chief Medical Examiner for the state of Rhode Island.

Reverend James A. O'Donohoe graduated from Boston College in 1943 and from St. John's Seminary in 1947. His doctorate in canon law was obtained from Louvain University. Since 1954 he has been a member of the faculty of St. John's Seminary where he is currently Professor of Justice and Right.

Though born in New York City, E. James Potchen, M.D. spent most of his youth in Grand Rapids, Michigan, where his father is Professor of Physics at Aquinas College. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1954 and from Wayne State University School of Medicine in 1958. After interning at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids he entered general practice in that city. In 1962 he began a residency in radiology at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston.

A graduate of Boston College and of Tufts University, School of Medicine, James A. Whelton, M.D. has had extensive obstetrical and gynecological training in Boston, New York, and Stockholm. He is currently Assistant Director of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Boston City Hospital.